PROFESSOR TODD RETIRES.

Director of the Nautical Almanac

Ends His Active Service. Washington, Aug. 25.—Having reached the age limit, Professor H. D. Todd, U. S. N., director of the Nautical Almanac, retires today from active scientific work at the head of this naval publication, one of the most important scientific posts under the Govern-important scientific posts under the Government.

The directorship of the Nautical Almanac will be assumed by Professor S. J. Brown, the astronomical director of the observatory. Professor Todd was graduated at the Naval Academy in 1857. He served for two years under Captain Dupont in Chinese waters and was present at the attack on the Taku forts in 1859 and at Tien-Tsin when the treaty was signed. He was next ordered to duty on the coast of Africa and took part in capturing the slaver Erie, with 197 alaves on board.

Professor Todd served throughout the Civil War as Lieutenant and Lieutenant Commander, being Flag Lieutenant of the Cumberland at the Norfolk Navy Yard when Sumter was fired on. He was, in 1856, ordered to duty in Nautical Almanac office, continuing until he became director of the Nautical Almanac, which position he held on retirement.

WE, the directors and officers of the Franklin Bank of St. Louis, desire to place on its records an expression of our feelings of profound sorrow and deep regret for the sudden ceath of our beloved and much-esteemed second vice president, Mr. Wm. H. Thornbursh.

A daily attendant to our meetings, he left us only a few days ago, apparently in excellent health, to meet his family on the senshore in Mains, whence comes now the appailing intelligence of his untimely death.

We have lost in him a true and faithful friend, a wise and conscientious counselor, whose unsuffishness, strict integrity and kind-heartedness won him the esteem of all who had the good fortune of his intimate acquaintance.

To his bgreaved family we hereby tender our beartfelt simpathy and the assurance that the remembrance of his spotless life of honor, love and faithfulness will embellish his memory with his numerous friends.

GOV. STONE ANALYZES PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN

Concise and Lucid Statement of the Paramount Questions at Issue—Bryan Stronger Than in 1896—Predicts Democratic Success.

Extracts from an article by ex-Governor Stone of Missouri in the September Forum.

Ratio is not necessarily an immutable would probably disappear. Ratio is not necessarily an immutable quantity. It has been changed, and can be changed again, if need be. Republicans say that if we coin silver and gold at the ratio of 16 to 1, the silver dollar will be worth less than the gold collar, will have a smaller purchasing power, and that, in consequence, we shall have two measures of different values. They say, also, that silver, coined at that ratio, being a cheaper money, would drive gold out of circulation; that it would disturb our exchanges and make com nerce with foreign nations difficult; and that it would be dishonest to creditors, since t would compel them to take less than had been promised to them. But, while the Republicans make these special pleas against he particular ratio mentioned, they are, in fact, opposed to the free coinage of silver at any ratio. The fundamental objection made to the ratio of 16 to 1 is that the bullion value of the silver dollar would be only about one-half the bullion value of the gold dollar; and, therefore, it is said, that the intrinsic value of the two dollars would be so radically different that parity between them coud not be maintained. But if parity between them could be maintained; that is o say, if the gold dollar and the silver dollar could be made to have the same, or substantially the same, intrinsic value and purchasing power, then they would be interchangeable, and the evils apprehended from coining both, whether real or imaginary, would disappear. If this parity or equality of value cannot be maintained at the ratio

Now, we Democrats believe in sound money, in parity, in equality in the pur-chasing power of dollars, and all that, as much as anybody believes in them. If any person, or party, who really desires bi-metallism believes that the ratio of 16 to 1 is not a correct ratio, we are ready to disis not a correct ratio, we are ready to discuss that minor phase of the question with a view to reaching an agreement. But we cannot discuss that subject with gold standard Republicans, for the reason that they are opposed, as above stated, to the free coinage of sliver at any ratio. In other words, they are opposed to bimotallism.
Upon the coinage question, therefore, the difference between the two parties is fundamental.

of 16 to 1, then it certainly can be at some other ratio.

Now, what would be the effect of Mr. Mc-Kinley's election upon this question, and what the effect of Mr. Bryan's election? If Mr. McKinley should be elected, it is safe to say that, so far as the single question of silver coinage is concerned, nothing would be done during his term. The gold people have got about all they want in that particular, and they would be content to leave the coinage question as it is. No doubt they would strive to procure, and probably would procure, the passage of additional currency legislation—retiring the greenbacks, for instance, and conferring greater privileges upon national banks, but the coinage situation would probably remain undisturbed.

the coinage situation would probably remain undisturbed.

Practically the same effect as to the coinage would follow in the event of Mr. Bryan's election. The Senate, by a large majority, is pronouncedly committed to the gold standard, and there is not one chance in fifty that any legislation favorable to silver coinage could be enacted during Mr. Bryan's term. The effect on silver coinage, therefore, during the ensuing presidential term, would be practically the same, whether Mr. Bryan or Mr. McKiniey should be elected. There would be an important difference in effect, however, as relates to other phases of the money question. If Mr. Bryan should be elected the greenbacks would not be retired, and the national banks would cease forthwith to exercise sovertents. would not be retired, and the national banks would cease forthwith to exercise sovereignty over the financial affairs of the people. And even as to the coinage question, silver would have its friends, instead of its enemies, in power—friends who would strive intelligently and conscientiously to restore it to its old place in the confidence and affairs of the business world, both in America and Europe. However, while the principle bimetallism is as important as ever, events transpiring since 1896 make it, as a practical question, of less immediate consequence in this campaign than it was in the last.

Mr. Bryan would undoubtedly attempt to extirpate and eradicate the trusts. There is not a trust magnate in America who does not believe that. Can that be done, if the whole power of the Government should be used to accomplish it? Why not? The Democratic platform proposes a means of defining trusts, and points out some specific remedies against them, which, if enforced, would make them unprofitable and impossible. But, if only the milder method of regulating them should be attempted, whose hands could be the better trusted to put a stiff bit on and hold the relns most firmly—McKinley's or Bryan's? The practical difference in the effect of electing the one candidate or the other would be this: If Mr. McKinley should be elected, the trust question would sink into "innocuous desuetude," while trusts themselves would continue to flourish; while if Mr. Bryan Mr. Bryan would undoubtedly attempt to would probably disappear.

Third, as to imperialism. What is imperialism, in the sense in which the term is currently used? By the treaty of Paris, made at the end of the Spanish War, Spain ceded to the United States her claim of sovereignty and jurisdiction over the Philippine Islands. Of what honest value this Spanish claim of sovereignty was, under the cirmustances, is a doubtful thing; but whatever claim she had, good or bad. Spain ceded to the United Sfates. What shall be done with the islands now? is the question. The policy of the McKinley administration, which has been indorsed by the Republican party, is to hold the islands as a permanent part of our domein, but without giving to them the ordinary rights of an American territory, and without conferring upon the people thereof the ordinary rights of American citizenship. It is proposed that this Government shall exercise sovereignty over the islands and their inhabitants, keeping them in subjection to our authority, but without permitting them to enjoy the privi-Government shall exercise sovereignty over the islands and their inhabitants, keeping them in subjection to our authority, but without permitting them to enjoy the privileges attaching to our other Territories, and which belong as of right to all our people, thereby making colonies of the islands and subjects of their inhabitants.

If Mr. McKinley should be re-elected, strengthered in his purpose by popular indorsement, he would go forward with this perilous adventure upon which he and his advisers have embarked the nation. If Mr. Bryan should be elected he would, he has said, immediately convene Congress in extraordinary session, and recommend: (1) that we establish a stable government in the Philippine Islands, as we are doing in Cuba; (2) that we grant independence to the Filipinos, as we have promised it to the Cubans; (3) that we protect the Filipinos from outside interference, just as we protect the Republics of Central and South America, and as we pledged, by the Monroe Doctrine, to protect Cuba.

America, and as we pledged, by the Monroe Doctrine, to protect Cuba.

Now, as to the election. What are Mr. Bryan's chances? While it is true that Mr. McKinley's plurality over Mr. Bryan in 1896 exceeded 600,000, and that his electoral majority was 95, it is also true that a change of 22,078 votes, properly distributed, would have given Mr. Bryan the State of California, Delaware, Indiana, Kentucky, North Dakota, Oregon and West Virginia, which would have elected him. A change of 38,191 votes, properly distributed, would have added Maryland to the Bryan column, in addition to the States named, and thus given him the election by a majority of 23 in the electoral college. Of the eight States named, a part were carried by only slight pluralities; and the aggregate opposition vote, not cast for either Mr. McKinley or Mr. Bryan, amounted to 39,438, of which 14,393 were gold Democratic votes cast for General Palmer. These figures make it clear that the Republican victory of 1896 was not so sweeping as some would make it appear; and when we reflect that at least half of the eight States named are ordinarily and normally Democratic, and that all are fairly debatable, and when we further reflect that most of the gold Democrats who deserted the party in 1896 are disposed this year to support the ticket, there is nothing in the returns of the last election to discourage Democrats in striving for a different result this year.

In 1896 Mr. Bryan was a new man, practically unknown in American politics. The country was uncertain about him, and business interests were afraid of him. Now he is well known. He is universally esteemed to be what he is—an earnest, sincere man, gentle as a woman, yet strong as a giant; honorable, just, and brave; a man of positive convictions, yet conservative; broadgauged, liberal-minded, and, above all, intensely anxious to be right. Such a man is a safe man. He has improved with age and with acquaintance. The people generally have come to believe that he can be trusted with power, for now they ag This wider confidence in the man's splend d integrity, character, and intelligence is one of the strongest of Mr. Bryan's new elements of strength.

And so, looking the whole field over, the conclusion is reached, and the prophecy made, that Mr. Bryan will be elected. All who love our republican institutions, and would preserve them unimpaired, should strive ceaselessly to accomplish that result

METHODISTS' GREAT SCHEME. Institutional Church at Chicago Will Be Erected.

Chicago, Aug. 25.-A temple that will rival any other in the world is to be built in Chicago, if plans now under consideration by the various Methodist Church officials in this city are matured and executed. The edifice will be the home of the consolidated churches, under institutional rule, and, if reports prove correct, the presiding eccle-siastic will be Doctor Camden M. Cobern slastic will be Doctor Camden M. Cobern of Denver.
Doctor Cobern, who is pastor of Trinity Church in the Colorado city, was interviewed in Denver, but would say nothing, beyond asserting that the matter had not reached a point where he could talk. Presiding Elder Jackson said:
"I will not say that Doctor Cobern has been approached in regard to the institutional church pastorate. I can say little about the plan. At present we are somewhat in the dark as regards what we can do. We have too much money to obtain to talk now."

do. We have too much money to obtain to talk now."

The plan will be to effect the consolidation of several big Methodist chuches and congregations, including Trinity. The First Church and others, sell the church properties and employ the capital thus derived-possibly $2.00.000—in the building of one of the greatest religious temples ever known in the history of the world, it will recognize no class or caste, and meetings will be conducted on week-days as they are on Sunday. It will furnish employment for the unemployed, and will furnish comfort to those in distress or want from any cause.

Collection.

New York, Aug. 24 .- The late C. P. Huntington's art collection, if it were sold at auction, would possibly bring $2,000,000. In the course of the last six years his commissioners have spent about $230,000, it is said, in buying the works of American artists. Withbuying the works of American artists. Within the last six months he bought "Old Master" for $60,000. In his collection are paintings by Meissonier, Millet, Troyon, Rosa Bonheud, Rousseau, Sir Frederick Leighton Bonheud, Rousseau, Sir Frederick Leighton and Landseer.

One part of his collection is a series of pictures of Roman Catholic prelates, from Popes to Bishops, for which he paid 88,000 francs. His gallery contains also many of Gustave Dore's works. Fine tapestries were always sought by Mr. Huntington. One piece now in his home as a portiere was designed by Teniers and cost 60,000 francs.

The collection includes also miniatures and bric-a-brac.

PERISHED IN AN ICEHOUSE.

Butcher Caught by Falling Ice and Froze to Death.

Detroit, Mich, Aug. 25.—Joseph Kronke, a butcher in the Polish district, known as the "King of the Poles." a power in local politics, was accidentally killed in his icehouse tics, was accidentally killed in his icehouse at the rear of his store. Accompanied by an employe, Frank Haas, Kronke went into the icehouse early this morning. They had barely begun to chop when huge chunks of ice came tumbling down upon them. The floor gave way and the two were thrown into the space below. Haas, who is slim, managed to squeeze out between the ice blocks after an hour's exertion, but he was chilled and numbed with the cold. Rescuers worked for two hours before Kronke's body was taken out. There were no external marks of injury and it is believed he froze to death.

CLAIMS ESTATE OF ABRAHAM KAUFMAN.

Vera V. Kaufman Petitions Court for Letters of Administration-Claims to Be His Widow.

HIS RELATIVES ARE SURPRISED.

Say That They Did Not Know That He Was Married-A Legal Battle Over Insurance Policy Probable.

Mas, Vera V. Kaufman filed a petition in the Probate Court yesterday for letters of administration upon the estate of Abraham Kaufman, who was drowned in the Meramec River while fishing August 18. A few days before Vera V. Kaufman filed her petition, a brother of the dead man announced his intention of applying for administration papers. The estate consists of an accident policy for $5,000 in the Fidelity and Casualty Company of New York, and personal property valued at $100.

An interesting legal fight probably will result in the case. The father and brothers of Abraham Kaufman insist that they were unaware of the fact that he had a wife. Vera V. Kaufman, the petitioner, lives at No. 11 North Garrison avenue. An effort was made yesterday to ascertain from her where and when she was married, but she refused to discuss the matter. Max Kaufman, secretary of the Board of Health of St. Louis, who lives at No. 4627 Maryland avenue, said that the filing of the petition was a great surprise to him

"Miss Corelli has written more sensational books, but not many that have shown her mastery of human emotions or keenness of perception as to agencies that influence human life. It is a fine psychological study.' -Brooklyn Daily Eagle.

MARIE CORELLI ON WAR

PATRIOTISM.—OR SELF-ADVERTISEMENT?

A Social Note on the Present War. By MARIE CORELLI.

12mo. Paper, 25 Cents.

An interesting point of view concerning Britain and her army "ordered South," the charitable entertainments given in aid of that army, with a pretty stiff arraignment of Mr. Kipling generally, and of the "Absent-Minded Beggar" particularly.
